Cooking as an Accomplishment.

The London Saturday Resize revives Cobbett's reflections on the choice of a wife, contained in his "Advice to Young Mes," but makes no particular effort to adapt his instructions to the present day. Human nature being pretty much the same in all ages, a partion of Mr. Cobbett's advice can be adopted to good advantage for present use. Mr. Cobbett was, himself, an excellent example of the solid comfort which follows discretion in the choice of TUESDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1872. Concerning that Contract with Wall St eet Willson.

There is one subject of inquiry connected with the question of subscribing to fierce the W. & L E Company, ignored by the Second Branch of Council, that ought not to be neglected by the First. It is the contract made more than six months ago by the Company with persons in New by the Company with persons in New Jork who call themselves "H. B. William and withe: "I have tried all the son & Co." As we then pointed out, there were some very singular things there were some very singular things all the bachelor's treedom from domestic cares." All this was owing to the possession of the company wife. about the making of that contract. Is sion of a well chosen wife.

was made by a skeleton organization which had not probably $25,900 bona fide stock subscriptions at the time, though it stock subscriptions at the time, though it when the exercise of judgment before marriage was easier on account of the morre intimate relations between young was to bind a capital, afterwards to be more intimate relations between brought in, of six or seven millions mer and women who contemplated matrimory. But in cases where fashionable was to be subjected to the terms of the contract thus made, without any voice in experience in the past, it requires a large determining its provisions. Another pedegree of descriment, and a greater ex-tent of enterprise on the part of the ambi-tious young man, to satisfy himself be-forehand that he securing a wife who will forever keep him out of the divorce courts. Mr. Cobbett advises that young men should look at their sweethearts' shoes, culiar feature is that the Company bound themselves to pay a stipulated price per mile without a survey of the line and without information as to the probable cost of the work. There was nothing on their part but mere guessnothing on their part but mere guess-work. They bound their company to pay and when he tells us that a good way to an average of $35,000 a mile for the whole line. Now the President of the Company the covering of the ankles," it becomes apparent how difficult it would be to apline. Now the President of the Company reports, upon the careful estimates of a survey made by a competent engineer, that while 601 miles of the road will cost between three and four thousand dollars a mile more than the contract price, the other 1141 miles will cost between elseen and tueler thousand dollars per mile less thousand dollars per mile some point, however, on which the desirable nowadays than it was in time. "Eating and drinking" he says in another of his books, "come three times a day." survey made by a competent engineer, than the contract price. That is, the 175 miles (160 of line and 15 of siding) will cost $4.500.637.50, while the Company have contracted to pay $1,125.000. The mestic cares, along with the pleasures of married life, it must have been principally because his wife was a good cook. A "good cook" is a term which should include a knowledge of all details of the cusase, from the buying of materials to the serving of them on the table. It means expount yearstilling invention. difference is $1,534,363, which is dead loss to the Company, resulting from the idiotic course pursued in making a contract Now this city is asked to come in as a stockholder and put $300,000 into the losing side of that contract, with a liability of $390,000 more. Is it a sate, judicions investment? Can any man show that it is? We put it to the common sense of men in Council or out.

What she was be in this contract, with a liability of $300,000 more. Is it a sate, judicions investment? Can any man show that it is? We put it to the common sense of men in Council or out.

What else may be in this contract that tanate young creature," and advised every might add to the risks of the city as a party to it, we do not know. The people of the city do not know. They did not know when they voted discretion to council last spring. They so voted on the possibility of that summum bosium of domestic biles, a through knowledge of the cil last spring. They so voted on the faith of the natural presumption, and of pledges, that council would inform itself tailing on all points touching the safety of the investment before actually making it. In the six months that has elapsed, there has been protound silence about this contract. And now council is in the very eact of accepting a heavy liability under it, and we ask in the name of common sense, of common decency, and in the it, and we ask in the name of common sense, of common decency, and in the name of the public faith and trust that are about to be betrayed, whether gentlemen in council are going to put the city in as the heaviest stockholder of this Company, under the present contract, without knowing anything or everything about cooking. Dumas was one of a greatest literary workers in the world, and Rossini one of the greatest fitterary workers in the world, and Rossini one of the greatest composers; yet both were good cooks. It is preveratines they secretly taken legal advice upon it? Have they satisfied themselves it is fair and safe for the stockholders? Possibly: Have they satisfied themselves a manufacture satisfied themselves and satisfied themselves a manufacture satisfied themselves and satisfied themselves indeed. But why should there be secresy in the choosing of a wife, there is none of in such a matter? Whenever there is secreey about public business, rely on it that the young ladies of their choice know there is good ground to suspect rascality. The putitic business is the business of everybody. Every citizen has a right to know all about every point of it. It must be open to the inspection and criticism of wires, inexpressibly wretched, might in all, and it will not be honestly done un. ail, and it will not be honestly done unall, and it will not be honestly done un. Stitute a new rule for courtain). Instead less it is. We were told last Spring that for them they might invite themselves to the publication of the contract might errors a dinner of her cooking. This is not more impudent than the other. Both are injunctions. We said then and say now, pose the parties to sunoyances, such as injunctions. We said then and say now, if there is anything in this contract which would constrain our people to protect themselves against it by injunction, it is all the more reason why it should be ROPE-In a recent money article the Lonmade public. We do not suppose, how-"The recent absence of gold arrivals of finding matters as may be involved in this contract. But we entertain a hope that some of the gentlemen who favor this measure are not so committed to it as to support it if they can be shown that it will seriously imperil the interests which it is their duty to protect.

Let members of Council ask themselves whether in business, if some party whose financial resources were unknown to the them—or known to be slender—should ask them to join in a business contract where it appeared on the surface there is sless of the respectation of the surface in the rate of discount on this side of course makes the recent absence of gold arrivals of solely to the move have to be attributed solely to the move known to be slender—should ask them to join in a business contract where it appeared on the surface there.

Still less, would they do THE Literary World thinks that the premium business in getting subscribers for magazines and newspapers is being run into the ground. It says: this if they were not allowed to see the contract? What member of Council would transact his private business in this way? And are gentlemen in Council to be less honest and less careful in guarding the city from fraud and robbery, in trans-acting the business their fellow citizens have confided to them, than they would be in their own shops and counting houses? We trust not.

THE new President of Mexico, TEJADA, is only forty-five years old. At the established average of two a year, he has strong hopes of seeing at least fifty revolutions in the government of his beloved country, before reaching the limited threescore and ten years of man's life.

As a striking illustration of mercantile honor, it is atated that nearly all the notes of business men destroyed in the sa'e of the Freeman's Bank, of Boston, in in chromos; they do much to refine our homes, and to encourage a love for the beautiful; but under the present system of wholesale gratulious (seemingly) distribution, their office will be degraded and they will take rank with Sunday school opicture cards."
